

THE HONORABLE JOHN C. COUGHENOUR

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT SEATTLE

RUSHFORTH CONSTRUCTION CO.,
INC/ d/b/a AP RUSHFORTH, a
Washington Corporation,

CASE NO. C17-1063-JCC

Plaintiff,

V.

WESCO INSURANCE COMPANY, a foreign insurance company, et al.,

Defendant.

This matter comes before the Court on Plaintiff’s motion for partial summary judgment against Defendant Wesco Insurance Company (“Wesco”)<sup>1</sup> (Dkt. No. 79), Wesco’s motion to continue (Dkt. No. 83), and Wesco’s cross-motion for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 86). Having thoroughly considered the parties’ briefing and the relevant record, the Court finds oral argument unnecessary and hereby GRANTS Plaintiff’s motion (Dkt. No. 79) and DENIES Wesco’s motions (Dkt. Nos. 83, 86) for the reasons explained herein.

I. BACKGROUND

Plaintiff Rushforth Construction Company brings suit against twelve insurers for <sup>1</sup> Plaintiff originally filed this motion against Defendant United Specialty Insurance Company as well, but withdrew the motion as to that defendant. (Dkt. No. 96.)

1 inadequate defense and indemnification in an underlying lawsuit. (Dkt. No. 1 at 4–7.) Plaintiff
2 served as the general contractor on the Lake Hills Village Project. (Id. at 7.) Wesco insured
3 Sound Glass Sales, Inc. (“Sound Glass”), a subcontractor on the project. (Dkt. No. 86 at 2.)
4 Plaintiff was an “additional insured” under Sound Glass’s Wesco policy. (Id.) On October 28, 5 2015, Lake Hills sued Plaintiff for defective construction and subsequent damage. (Dkt. No. 1 at 6 8.) Lake Hills filed an amended complaint on June 20, 2015. (Dkt. No. 72 at 20.)

7 On July 1, 2016, Plaintiff tendered its defense and demand for indemnity to Wesco. (Dkt.
8 No. 73 at 7.) Wesco’s third-party claim administer opened a claim, set reserves, and began 9 gathering information. (Dkt. No. 86 at 4.) Wesco requested, and Plaintiff provided, additional 10 information in August 2016. (Id.) Wesco prepared a draft reservation of rights letter (“ROR”) on 11 or around September 1, 2016. (Dkt. No. 74 at 10.) The ROR was ready for approval and issuance
12 by September 23, 2016 but was not issued at that time. (Id.) Over the next ten months, Plaintiff
13 sent Wesco four letters requesting a coverage position. (Dkt. Nos. 79 at 5, 86 at 4) (letters dated 14 November 11, 2016, January 18, 2017, March 7, 2017, March 24, 2017). Upon receipt of these 15 letters, Wesco’s adjuster internally requested approval of the ROR, but Wesco neither issued the 16 ROR nor replied to Plaintiff’s inquiries. (See Dkt. Nos. 79 at 6, 74 at 22, 74 at 7, 86 at 4.) On 17 March 8, 2017, Wesco’s adjuster revised and resubmitted the ROR to be finalized. (Dkt. No. 86 18 at 4.) Wesco took no further action at the time.

19 Plaintiff filed suit against Wesco on July 13, 2017. (Dkt. No. 1.) On July 26, 2017,
20 Wesco finalized and mailed the ROR, agreeing to defend Plaintiff. (Dkt. No. 73 at 10.) Plaintiff
21 rejected Wesco’s offer of defense on August 18, 2017. (Dkt. No. 74 at 22.) On October 27, 2017,
22 Wesco advised Plaintiff that its offer to defend stood, and that it would pay its proportionate
23 share of Plaintiff’s expenses incurred to date. (Dkt. No. 86 at 5.) Wesco subsequently informed
24 Plaintiff of its position that it had a right to participate in Plaintiff’s defense. (Id.) Plaintiff again
25 declined the proffered defense. (Id.)

26 Plaintiff brings claims against Wesco for declaratory relief, breach of contract, insurer

1 bad faith, insurer negligence, and violation of Washington’s Consumer Protection Act. (Dkt. No.
2 1 at 31–38.) Plaintiff seeks partial summary judgment on the following elements of these claims:
3 (1) whether Wesco owed and breached its duty to defend; (2) whether Wesco acted in bad faith;
4 and (3) whether Wesco can cure its breach by offering a belated defense. (Dkt. No. 79 at 3.)
5 In response, Wesco moves to continue Plaintiff’s motion until discovery is completed. (Dkt. No.
6 83.) Wesco also cross-moves for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 86).

7 II. DISCUSSION

8 A. Wesco’s Motion to Continue

9 As an initial matter, the Court finds it unnecessary to continue Plaintiff’s motion for 10 summary judgment. Wesco requests a continuance in order to complete discovery and obtain 11 information related to harm, causation, and damages. (Dkt. No. 83 at 5.) However, Wesco has 12 not shown how the facts it seeks are essential to its opposition of Plaintiff’s motion, which 13 explicitly excludes elements of harm, causation, and damages. (See Dkt. Nos. 94 at 5–6, 102 at 14 3); Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(d) (party seeking continuance of summary judgment motion must show 15 “by affidavit or declaration that, for specified reasons, it cannot present facts essential to justify 16 its opposition”). The Court will not rule on elements of Plaintiff’s claims not addressed by its 17 motion.<sup>2</sup> Accordingly, Wesco’s motion to continue is DENIED.

18 B. Plaintiff’s Motion for Partial Summary Judgment

19 The Court may grant summary judgment on part of a claim or defense where the “movant 20 shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to 21 judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). The Court must view the facts and justifiable 22 inferences to be drawn therefrom in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party. Anderson v.
23 Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 255 (1986). Once a motion for partial summary judgment is 24 properly made and supported, the opposing party must present specific facts showing that there

25
26 <sup>2</sup> Finding Wesco’s motion substantively deficient, the Court will not address the procedural deficiencies of Wesco’s motion to continue. (See Dkt. No. 94 at 3–4.)

1 is a genuine issue for trial. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(e); Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio
2 Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 587 (1986). A dispute about a material fact is genuine if there is sufficient
3 evidence for a reasonable jury to find for the non-moving party. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 248–49.
4 Summary judgment is appropriate against a party who “fails to make a showing sufficient to 5 establish the existence of an element essential to that party’s case, and on which that party will 6 bear the burden of proof at trial.” Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 324 (1986).

7       1. Breach of Duty to Defend

8       Plaintiff first moves for a determination that Wesco breached its duty to defend. Wesco
9 does not contest that it had a contractual duty to defend Plaintiff. (See Dkt. No. 86 at 4.)
10 However, Wesco maintains it did not breach this duty because it never denied Plaintiff’s tender
11 and eventually offered to defend Plaintiff. (Id. at 5, 7.)

12       An insurer’s duty to defend is triggered by the filing of a covered complaint. Griffin v.
13 Allstate Ins. Co., 29 P.3d 777, 781 (Wash. Ct. App. 2001). This duty includes the obligation to 14 provide a “prompt and proper defense.” N.H. Indem. Co., Inc. v. Budget Rent-A-Car Sys., Inc., 15 64 P.3d 1239, 1243 (Wash. 2003). An insurer may breach its duty to defend by failing to respond 16 to an insured’s tender in a reasonably timely manner. Allan Windt, INSURANCE CLAIMS AND 17 DISPUTES § 2:4 (6th ed. 2018) (collecting cases); see Cedar Grove Composting, Inc. v. Ironshore
18 Specialty Ins. Co., Case. No. C14-1443-RAJ, slip op. at *6 (W.D. Wash. June 2, 2015) (“refusal 19 to pay a demand for coverage reasonably promptly is [a] . . . denial of benefits”). An offer to 20 defend after an initial denial does not erase an insurer’s breach of its duty to defend. Jaco Envtl., 21 Inc. v. Am. Intern. Specialty Lines Ins. Co., C09-0145-JLR, slip op. at *6 (W.D. Wash. May 19, 22 2009). The Court finds no reason to treat a constructive denial through failure to respond to 23 Plaintiff’s tender any differently.

24       Construing all facts in favor of Wesco, the Court finds the insurer failed to provide a 25 prompt and proper defense. Wesco owed Plaintiff a duty to defend no later than June 20, 2016, 26 when the amended complaint was filed in the underlying action. Wesco did not offer to defend

1 Plaintiff until July 26, 2017—over a year later and after Plaintiff brought suit. (Dkt. Nos. 1, 73 at 2 10.) Wesco owed and breached its duty to defend Plaintiff.<sup>3</sup>

3       2. Right and Opportunity to Cure<sup>4</sup>

4       Plaintiff next asks the Court to rule that Wesco did not have a right to cure its breach.
5 (Dkt. No. 79 at 14.) Wesco counters that its offer of a defense cured any breach, and Plaintiff's 6 contractual duty to "cooperate in the . . . defense of any covered claim" obligated it to accept 7 Wesco's belated defense. (Dkt. Nos. 79 at 14; 86 at 3, 8; 102 at 2.)

8       Insurance policies in Washington are governed under contract law. Weyerhaeuser Co. v.
9 Comm. Union Ins. Co., 167 P.3d 1125, 1131 (Wash. 2007). It is a basic tenant of contract law 10 that when a party materially breaches a contract, the non-breaching party is discharged from its 11 contractual obligations. Windt, supra, at § 3:10. Accordingly, an insured is discharged from the 12 contractual duty to cooperate when its insurer has materially breached its duty to defend. Id. at 13 § 4:25. This is true even if its insurer later offers a defense. Id. at § 4:9. While Washington state 14 courts have yet to specifically address the issue, this district has endorsed this approach. 2FL
15 Ent., LLC v. Houston Specialty Ins. Co., Case No. C17-0676-MJP, slip op. at *4 (W.D. Wash.
16 Feb. 5, 2018) (citing with approval cases from other jurisdictions holding that an insurer in 17 breach of its duty to defend loses the right to control its insured's defense); Tim Ryan Const., Inc.
18 v. Burlington Ins. Co., Case No. C12-5770-BHS, slip op. at *7 (W.D. Wash. Apr. 25, 2013)
19 (insured is "simply not required" to allow insurer to step in and defend it once the insurer
21

22       <sup>3</sup> The Court does not reach a judgment on Plaintiff's breach of contract claim. Plaintiff's
23 motion is confined to the issues of duty and breach and does not encompass the elements of harm
24 or causation. (See Dkt. Nos. 94 at 5–6, 102 at 3.)

25       <sup>4</sup> Defendants Ohio Security Insurance Company and the Ohio Casualty Insurance 26 Company (collectively "Ohio") filed an opposition to Plaintiff's motion, framing the "right to cure" issue as "whether the element of 'harm' required for an extracontractual claim . . . is satisfied even if other insurers were defending the insured." (Dkt. No. 89 n. 1.) The Court does not reach this question but addresses only Wesco's purported right to assume a belated defense.

1 breached its duty to defend).<sup>5</sup> Therefore, if Wesco’s breach was material, Plaintiff was released
2 from its duty to cooperate.

3 A breach is material if it “substantially defeats the purpose of the contract.” Park Ave. Condo. Owners Ass’n v. Buchan Devs. LLC, 71 P.3d 692, 698 (Wash. Ct. App. 2003). A prompt
4 litigation defense is one of the main benefits of an insurance contract. Windt, supra at § 2:21 (“a
5 substantial part of the protection purchased by an insured is the right to receive policy benefits
6 promptly”); N.H. Indem. Co., 64 P.3d at 1243 (duty to defend includes an obligation to provide a 7 prompt defense).

8 The materiality of a breach is a case-specific determination. Vacova Co. v. Farrell, 814
9 P.2d 255, 265 (Wash. Ct. App. 1991). A breaching party’s willingness to “cure its failures” may 10 be considered, but is not alone dispositive. 6A Wash. Prac., WASH. PATTERN JURY INSTR. CIV.
11 302.03 (6th ed.). Other relevant factors include: deprivation of a reasonably expected benefit;
12 whether the injured party can be adequately compensated; whether the breaching party will 13 suffer forfeitures; and whether the parties’ behavior comports with good faith standards. Id.

14 Although materiality is typically a question of fact, the Court may determine a breach is 15 material if reasonable minds could not find otherwise. Id.; Smith v. Safeco Ins. Co. 78 P.3d 1274, 16 1277 (Wash. 2003). Weighing the above factors and the centrality of a prompt defense to an 17 insurance contract, the Court finds that Wesco materially breached its insurance contract as a 18 matter of law by failing to make a coverage determination for over a year and doing so only after 19 Plaintiff filed suit. Accord Travelers Indem. Co. of Conn. v. Centex Homes, Case No. C11-
20 03638-SC, slip op. at *4, (N.D. Cal. Oct. 7, 2015) (insurer lost the right to control insured’s 21 defense where it failed to provide a defense within 30 days of the triggering of its duty to

23
24

<sup>5</sup> Wesco’s attempt to distinguish these holdings as limited to bad faith refusals to defend is unavailing. (Dkt. No. 106 at 3.) Neither case based the discharge of the insured’s contractual duties on bad faith. Furthermore, failure to promptly respond to a demand for coverage can constitute a constructive refusal to defend. See supra, Section C.1.

1 defend). Thus, Wesco did not have a right to provide a belated defense.<sup>6</sup>

2 Wesco fails to convince the Court that an insurer's continuing duty to defend after a
3 material breach gives it the right to defend. (See Dkt. No. 86 at 8.) Cases Wesco cites in support 4 of a "right to cure" establish only that an insured may expect its insurer to cure a breach of its 5 duty to defend any time before a final judgment. See Tibbs v Great Am. Ins. Co., 755 F.2d 1370,
6 1375–76 (9th Cir. 1985) (thus, statute of limitations on breach claim is not triggered until final 7 judgment issues); Jones v. Hyatt Ins., 741 A.2d 1099, 1104 (Md. Ct. App. 2017) (same); Vigilant
8 Ins. Co. v. Luppino, 723 A.2d 14, 19 (Md. Ct. App. 1999) (same). These holdings are based on 9 the principle that a continuing breach gives the non-breaching party the option to sue or to allow 10 the breaching party to cure. See Oil Base, Inc. v. Cont'l Cas. Co., 271 Cal. App. 2d 378, 390
11 (Cal. Ct. App. 1969); Campbell v. Hauser Lumber Co., 265 P. 468, 470 (Wash. 1928). Thus, 12 Plaintiff had the option of allowing Wesco to assume a defense, but was not required to do so.

13 Wesco cannot cure its breach by forcing Plaintiff to accept a belated defense.

14 3. Bad Faith Action

15 Finally, Plaintiff asks the Court to rule that Wesco's conduct breached its duty of good 16 faith as a matter of law. (Dkt. No. 79 at 5). An insurer acts in bad faith if its actions are 17 "unreasonable, frivolous, or unfounded." St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Onvia, Inc., 196
18 P.3d 664, 668 (Wash. 2008). Bad faith does not require intentional misrepresentation or fraud.
19 Tyler v. Grange Ins. Ass'n, 473 P.2d 193, 198 (Wash. Ct. App. 1970). To establish bad faith
20 based on delay, an insured must show that the delay was "delayed for a frivolous and unfounded

21
22 <sup>6</sup> There is no legal basis for Wesco's assertion that the reciprocal duty of good faith 23 requires an insured to accept its insurer's belated defense offered any time before the close of 24 litigation. (See Dkt. No. 86 at 10.) (citing Wash. Rev. Code 48.01.060). Such a rule would run
25 counter to the established principles of contract law discussed above and Washington insurance
26 law, which is structured to incentivize an insurer's prompt defense. See 35 Wa. Prac., Washington Insurance Law and Litigation § 3:1 (2017-2018 ed.); Wash. Admin. Code § 284-30-330(2).

1 reason.” Rizzuti v. Basin Travel Serv. of Othello, Inc., 105 P.3d 1012, 1021 (Ct. App. Wash.
2 2005). Failure to promptly respond to a demand for coverage can constitute an unreasonable
3 denial of benefits, even if the insurer eventually offers coverage. Cedar Grove Composting, Inc.,
4 Case. No. C14-1443-RAJ at *6. “Whether an insurer acted in bad faith is a question of fact,”
5 which can be decided on summary judgment only if reasonable minds could not differ in finding 6 the insurer’s conduct unreasonable. Smith v. Safeco Ins. Co. 78 P.3d 1274, 1277 (Wash. 2003).

7 The Court finds reasonable minds could not differ that Wesco’s delay was frivolous and 8 unfounded. After receiving Plaintiff’s tender in July 2016, Wesco opened a claim, set reserves, 9 and gathered information; in September, the insurer prepared an ROR. (Dkt. Nos. 86 at 4, 74 at 10 10.) Plaintiff presents evidence that Wesco then failed to act on the claim for ten months—save
11 for an internal revision to the ROR in March 2017. (Dkt. No. 79 at 6.) Over this period, Plaintiff
12 sent Wesco four letters inquiring about the status of the claim. (Dkt. Nos. 79 at 5, 86 at 4.) Email 13 records show that an adjuster sent internal email inquiries about the status of the claim, but 14 Wesco took no further action until after Plaintiff filed suit. (Id.) Viewing this evidence in the 15 light most favorable to Wesco, these facts indicate at best an unfounded lack of attention to its 16 insureds’ claims. An insurer can offer a reasonable basis for its delay as significant evidence that 17 it did not act in bad faith. See Smith, 78 P.3d at 1278. However, Wesco provides no specific facts 18 to supply a reasonable basis for its delay that would allow it to survive summary judgment. See 19 Matsushita Elec. Indus., 475 U.S. at 587.

20 Instead, Wesco insinuates through legal argument that its delay was due to an unspecified
21 “technical mistake,” which does not amount to bad faith. (Dkt. Nos. 86 at 13, 106 at 2.) A good 22 faith mistake does not give rise to a bad faith claim if the insurer “acts honestly, bases its 23 decision on adequate information, and does not overemphasize its own interest.” Werlinger v.
24 Clarendon Nat. Ins. Co. 120 P.3d 593, 595 (Wash. Ct. App. 2005). Wesco likens this case to 25 Highlands Insurance Company, where an insurer’s delay due to “clumsiness” was not bad faith.
26 Ins. Co. of State of Pa. v. Highlands Ins. Co., 801 P.2d 284, 286–87 (Wash. Ct. App. 1990).

1 However, the insurer in Highlands delayed due to attempts to resolve a coverage issue, which the 2 court found “mistaken or clumsy” but not “frivolous or unfounded.” Id. In contrast, Wesco
3 provides no justification or basis for its asserted mistake. Wesco overemphasized its own interest
4 when it ignored Plaintiff’s tender and repeated inquiries, failing to prioritize its insured’s
5 interests. Even if unintentional, Wesco’s unjustified actions were in bad faith. See Whistman v.
6 W. Am. of Ohio Cas. Grp. of Ins. Cos., 686 P.2d 1086, 1088 (Wash. Ct. App. 1984) (insurer 7 actions without reasonable justification are done without good faith).<sup>7</sup>

8 The Court finds that Wesco acted in bad faith as a matter of law.<sup>8</sup>

9 C. Wesco’s Cross-Motion

10 Wesco moves for summary judgment on the basis that: (1) Plaintiff improperly rejected
11 Wesco’s defense, and (2) Wesco did not act in bad faith. (Dkt. No. 86 at 2.) In the alternative,
12 Wesco asks the Court to limit any damages to Wesco’s proportionate share of defense costs. (Id.)

13 1. Motion for Summary Judgment on Plaintiff’s Claims

14 Wesco first argues that the Court should dismiss Plaintiff’s claims because Wesco offered 15 to defend Plaintiff, and Plaintiff improperly rejected that defense and refused to cooperate. (Dkt.
16 No. 86 at 5.) Having found Plaintiff had no duty to accept Wesco’s belated offer of defense, the 17 Court will not grant summary judgment on these bases. See supra, Section B.2.

18 In the alternative, Wesco moves for summary judgment on Plaintiff’s bad faith claim.
19 (Dkt. No. 86 at 5.) The Court has already concluded that Wesco acted in bad faith. See supra, 20 Section B.3. Wesco argues that because it cured its breach by offering a defense, Plaintiff cannot

22 <sup>7</sup> Violations of Washington’s insurance regulations provide additional “evidence of bad 23 faith.” Seaway Props., LLC v. Fireman’s Fund Ins. Co., 16 F. Supp. 3d. 1240, 1253 (W.D. Wash.
24 2014); Wash. Admin. Code § 284-30-330(2),(5) (insurers must “acknowledge and act reasonably promptly upon communications with respect to [insurance claims]” and “affirm or deny coverage of claims within a reasonable time”).

25 <sup>8</sup> The Court does not find here that Wesco is liable for the tort of bad faith. Harm is an 26 essential element of a suit for bad faith handling of an insurance claim. Safeco Ins. Co. v Butler, 823 P.2d 499, 503 (Wash. 1992). This issue is not addressed here. (See Dkt. No. 102 at 3).

1 show the additional element of harm. (Dkt. No. 86 at 13.) The Court has rejected Wesco's right
2 to cure argument and concluded that Wesco acted in bad faith—triggering a presumption of 3 harm. See supra, section B. Thus, the Court finds a genuine dispute of fact exists regarding 4 Plaintiff's harm, precluding summary judgment on Plaintiff's bad faith claim.

5       2. Motion for Limitation of Plaintiff's Damages

6       Finally, asks the Court to limit Plaintiff's damages to Wesco's proportionate share of 7 defense costs. (Dkt. No. 86 at 14.) Wesco's indemnity obligation<sup>9</sup> and Plaintiff's harm<sup>10</sup> are both
8 disputed and not properly before the Court on the present cross-motions. Thus, the Court finds it 9 premature to limit Wesco's damages at this time.<sup>11</sup> See Ledcor Indus. (USA) Inc. v. Mut. of 10 Enumclaw Ins. Co., 206 P.3d 1255, 1259, 1261–62 (Wash. Ct. App. 2009) (limiting damages for 11 a bad faith breach of duty to defend where insurer had satisfied duty to indemnify and the court 12 found Plaintiff suffered no harm from the breach).

13       III. CONCLUSION

14       For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiff's motion for partial summary judgment (Dkt. No. 79)
15 is GRANTED and Wesco's motion to continue (Dkt. No. 83) and cross-motion for summary
16 judgment (Dkt. No. 86) are DENIED.

22       <sup>9</sup> Wesco's Answer denies an indemnity obligation. (Dkt. Nos. 1 at ¶157, 45 at ¶ 27)

23       <sup>10</sup> The Court notes that Plaintiff's motion expressly excluded the issue of harm, and issue. (See Dkt. Nos. 94 at 5–6, 86 at 16.)
